THE GOLDEN DAFFODILS

(NARCISSI OR NARCISSUS)

Experienced growers in the Puget Sound section, on soil that is adapted to the production of these stocks, are now producing much larger and firmer Narcissus bulbs than those formally imported from Europe. They give better results for either forcing or garden decoration than the imported stocks for at least two reasons. Our newer and richer soil and ideal climatic conditions. Also the bulbs are not out of the ground so long, neither have they been abused as the imported stocks. These like all other bulbs deteriorate when held out of the ground for too long. Our stocks of Narcissus are dug in July and after proper curing and grading, delivered to our customers in late September and early October; the ideal planting time.

Our stocks are large enough this season to enable us to reduce prices to a pre-embargo level, on practically all the standard varieties. Of course the newer and rarer varieties of which only a limited amount of stock is available, will no doubt continue to command a much higher price for several seasons.

SIZE OF BULBS. Top-size ROUND. A bulb (usually grown from a smaller offset) which has reached its maximum growth, but has not yet started to divide itself. This grade will usually produce only one bloom stem the first season after planting. But under good growing conditions, with this one seasons growth, it will have started to divide, thereby forming a light double nosed bulb.

HEAVY DOUBLE NOSED BULBS. Are the light double nosed that have been grown for one season. Really two (or more) bulbs in one "wrapper." This grade produces at least two blooming stems, the first season after planting. Also at the end of this season, it will have divided into two perfect bulbs besides smaller offsets. This grade will give the very finest quality of bloom the first season. The round will not until the second.

Prices quoted, except where noted, are for HEAVY DOUBLE NOSED bulbs. Very few growers or dealers are in a position to supply this heavy grade. In most lists no sizes is SPECIFIED and the ROUND bulbs are supplied.

An asterisk (*) preceding the name indicates that top-size round bulbs will be supplied in like quantities at 25% less than the prices quoted.

For naturalizing or other permanent plantings, the round bulbs will prove satisfactory. But for indoor culture, or garden decoration, where quick effect is desired we strongly advise the use of the heavier grade.

We use the classification adopted by the Royal Horticulture Society of England, which divides this genus into twelve distinct types or groups.

We believe this list contains the very finest in cultivation; the very choicest of the standard varieties as well as the latest introductions. Many of the latter are offered for the first time in America.

In describing a Daffodil bloom, the outer row of petals are termed the perianth (P), the inner part is termed trumpet (T), crown or cup, depending on the length.

TALL BEARDED IRIS

(Pogoniris)

We realize the official descriptions of this flower are confusing and often nearly meaningless to the amateur; so instead of the usual alphabetical order, we arrange our list into twelve color groups or effects. Each group begins with the lightest effect or shades. The three upright petals are termed "standards" (S), the three lower or drooping ones "falls" (F). The beard (B) is not mentioned except when conspicuous. Although hardy as oaks with us, we do not recommend the following for very cold sections. Marian Mohr, Conquistador, Crusader, Mlle. Schwartz, San Gabriel, J. B. Dumas, Amador, Magnifica, Leverrier, Mme. Durand, and Argentina. But these are all superb and well worthy of the extra care needed in cold sections.

THE BULBOUS IRIS

Except for the very cold sections and perhaps the extreme south, the species we offer should prove very satisfactory and of easy culture. These require only reasonable care and proper planting. With us they grow anywhere, thriving in either upland clay loam or the sandy silt lowlands.

The Dutch and Spanish groups should be planted in a sunny well drained situation. After blooming, they should be allowed to get fairly dry for a couple of months. This enables the bulbs to ripen properly and insures blooming the next season.

These two are also excellent for indoor culture.

The English like a cooler and more moist situation; they also give excellent results in partial shade. At no time should these be allowed to become dry. All three groups are excellent for cutting.
